Humane Society Worker Accidentally Gassed To Death

Friday, March 31, 2000

Chattanooga Police are investigating what appears to be the accidental death of a Humane Society worker, who was found dead at the entrance to the animal shelter's gas chamber.

The victim was identified as Vernon W. Dove Jr., 39.

The chamber, which is located in a courtyard of the facility at 212 N. Highland Park, uses carbon monoxide to kill animals.

Apparently Mr. Dove, who had gassed a dog late Tuesday afternoon, neglected to vent the carbon monoxide out of the chamber before opening its door.

The worker was overcome by the gas and was found lying dead, partially in the chamber.

Mr. Dove had gone to Bakewell earlier to pick up a dog which had bitten its owner and was putting the dog to sleep, so that rabies testing could be performed.

The investigation by Detective Charles Dudley indicates that perhaps the worker was distracted from following proper procedure because he was hurrying to pick up his children at school.

The employee was last heard from just after 5 p.m. as he was enroute back from Bakewell. He was found by other Humane Society workers who returned to the shelter around 8 p.m.

Mapp's History Lesson: Stand For What Is Right

James R. Mapp had a favorite phrase, "We don't concern ourselves with what others think when we know the thing that we must do is right." It may come as no surprise that Mapp was a walking history book and life resource. He identified with the poor and jobless because his family was forced to move from a Georgia sharecropping community due to of the greed of a local land baron on ... (click for more)

Roy Exum: Could So Many Be Wrong?

Answer me this: Tennessee Governor Bill Haslam told reporters this week that Confederate General Nathan Bedford Forrest would not be included on his list of state heroes and that he favored removal of a bust of the now-maligned Forrest from the state capitol. If indeed the likeness of General Forrest is suddenly such a disgrace, why was his funeral procession two miles long in 1877, ... (click for more)

Big Ridge Takes Top Spot In White With One-Point Win At Ridgeside

There have been some really close meets in the Chattanooga Area Swim League regular season this summer, but none any closer than the ones held on Thursday evening. The Big Ridge Raiders took charge of the CASL's White division with a one-point win at Ridgeside, but that wasn't the closest meet of the day as the Calhoun Blue Barracudas finished in a tie with the Country Club Wavemakers ...
